Know the Rules... What Your Child Can Do

- Never go out alone—It is always safer to be with someone else, whether you are a child or not. Take a friend, sister or brother.
- Check First— It is smart to let someone know where you will be at all times. If you are ever faced with a bad situation or get into trouble, someone will know where to start looking for you. Make sure that you only go places that your parents say are ok. Never accept gifts, candy, money or rides from anyone without your parent's permission.
- Your body belongs to you—You have the right to say NO to unwanted and inappropriate attention, such as teasing, touching and bullying. Trust your intuition and run away from a situation that doesn't feel right.
- If you feel threatened, say NO and tell a trusted adult—If anyone does something that makes you scared, uncomfortable or confused, you have the right to say NO and go TELL. Adults do not ask children for help, nor can they threaten you; never approach an unknown car or go anywhere with an adult you do not know. Say NO and go TELL.
- Have a system in place on what to do if you are separated from your parents in a public place.
- Learn how to dial 911 in case of emergencies and know your address, phone number, where your parents work or can be contacted. Know how to make collect calls and use a pay phone operator.
- There are certain kinds of strangers that can assist you when you need help. For example; uniformed police officers, mothers with children, store clerks in uniform.

I am Strong, Smart and have the right to be Safe.
